My well-dressed, pampered peoples,

Another Barrister's Ball in the books. You all looked wonderful, if I do say so myself. And I do say so myself. Like. WOW. We are all tremendously good-looking and talented. Pat yourself on the back for that, you dancing queens.

Gotta give a tip of the hat to Kristine Baker and the whole SBA Social committee for doing a heck of a job planning and executing on this Ball. The setup was great and any event that serves lamb sticks might as well be heaven.

A wag of the finger goes to the bartender who refused to give me my credit card back. And when I wag my finger, it does not un-wag. #wag.

And, man, Robert Mueller really doesn't care about what you wanted to do on Fridays. The guy just does. not. care. about. the. weekend. I kind of respect that. You know who doesn't respect that? Twitter.

The sheer amount of hot takes about a document that has been written by a small number of people and then read by an even smaller number is maddening. It's twitter at its worst. And, considering it's March Madness, looking at Twitter today was basically a Jay Bilas/ Alex Jones fever dream mixtape.

Also, and I'm actually interested in the answer to this, what could possibly be the reason that the full report would not be released? This is not a rhetorical question. I'm not asking "could someone please inform me why my older sisters' child photo albums are much more complete than mine?" I know the answer to that question: my parents got lazy and I was supremely photogenic as a child, so there was just no need to photograph me adorable face past a certain age.

I don't know the answer to the former question, and my simple brain cannot comprehend why it wouldn't be immediately released in full. But I am a simple plebeian.

Onward. Many events this week including, but not limited to, SBA elections for the e-board's replacement (including my replacement!). That means my reign of terror over this communications platform is nearing its end. My ego cannot take someone getting elected that could possibly be better than me, so I will be utilizing the internet to take down the more-qualified candidate(s). Stay tuned for the subterfuge! ;) ;) ;)

SONG OF THE WEEK - My Bad - Khalid

MEME OF THE WEEK - Due to #Basketball, there are TWO MEMES OF THE WEEK!!!!

White players the last 30 seconds of the game

1L OF THE WEEK

The 1L of the week is Catherine Braun! Catherine speaks three languages (and almost four) and was nice enough to put up with some tough questions the day after Barrister's Ball. She deserves a medal, but would likely settle for coffee if you offered (as you should!).

Q: Where are you from?

A: I'm from Carmel/Westfield, Indiana, which is about two hours South of here.

Q: Where did you attend undergrad?

A: I went to NYU, and also, while I was there I studied abroad at NYU-Shanghai and NYU-Paris. They're both amazing! I can't really decide which is better. I think the juxtaposition is really good between them. There's kind of a symbiotic relationship within each city. The food in Paris was really unparalleled, though. I would definitely recommend going to either or both!

Q: How was your Barrister's Ball?

A: It was good! It was so fun. Everyone cleans up incredibly well at our law school - I know we wear sweatpants most of the time, but people looked incredible.

Q: What's your favorite hobby?

A: Traveling - definitely traveling. I have grown up fortunate enough to travel a lot... obviously Paris and Shanghai were incredible experiences. I had a sister in South Africa, so I've spent some time there. I also have dual citizenship with Italy. I was not born there, but my mom's dad was 100% Italian. Essentially, they had this process where if you could prove citizenship through birth records within two generations - it took two years and everything was in Italian, but I was able to get it.

Q: Did you fill out a bracket for the tournament? If so, who wins? If not, why do you hate me?

A: First of all, I do not hate you and I hope nobody else does if they did not fill out a bracket. Second of all, to my dad's disappointment, I did not fill out a bracket. But I am in the moot court tournament bracket!

Q: Do you believe in ghosts? Why or why not?

A: OH MY GOD this is crazy that you just asked me this because I was literally just having this conversation with multiple people recently. People might think about me differently but there is definitely something out there. With how little we know about the Earth and the universe, there's definitely something out there, something inter-dimensional. Maybe not paranormal activity or something, but something. So, to answer your question, yes.

Q: My dad's birthday is April 1 - how should I prank him?

A: OH man... this is really hard. Ummm, have you done things in the past? [No]. Oh, so this is the first time? This is really hard... oh so since you're graduating in the spring, what if you do something like "oh dad, I just realized I don't have enough credits to graduate..." or something. I don't know, that's seems like a very believable prank you could do.

* LIGHTNING ROUND*

A: Right

Q: Dwayne "The Rock" Johnson or "The Rock" starring Sean Connery?

A: Sean Connery

Q: Shrimp Basket or Shrimp Bucket?

A: Bucket

Q: Ren or Stimpy?

A: Ren

Q: Spicy Pickles or Tommie Pickles?

A: Tommie Pickles

Q: Do you have anything else you'd like to say to all of your fans?

A: Ooh. I guess, just that everybody looked really great at Barrister's Ball and that I hope they had a really good time and are recovering well. If anyone has any Easter Brunch recommendations, you should maybe start looking into that because it seems like a big deal. I don't know, it's Sunday.

Q: Who should be 1L of the week next week?

A: Braeden Lord.

Long Reads of the Week

- The Mortician and the Murderer
 - The insane true story of the 1980s mortician who turned his family's funeral home into a nightmare cremation factory—pulling gold teeth, harvesting organs, and threatening anyone who got in his way.
- Raising Really Good Hell for People Who Cannot
 - The sociologist speaks on owning her authority, taking black women seriously, and how she shaped her trenchant new essay collection, Thick
- I don't have a link for it (because as of this morning, it still hasn't been released, but you should probably read the Mueller Report whenever it drops. As I said above, it makes no sense for the whole thing to not be released. ￣_(ツ)_￣
- How Google's Bad Data Wiped a Neighborhood off the Map
 - The renaming of Buffalo, New York's Fruit Belt neighborhood reveals as much about gentrification as it does the flawed ways tech companies add locations to their maps.
- Us and Jordan Peele's New Horror - This contains spoilers.
 - In his latest film, the comedian turned director continues to reinvent how the genre uses fear to comment on humanity's evil.
 - I saw the movie on Friday and have been thinking about it all weekend. Since my girlfriend will no longer hear out my thoughts on it, I'm sharing this piece with y'all that pretty well sums it up. Go see the movie, it's crazy.
- If Liberals Won't Enforce Borders, Fascists Will
 - Demagogues don't rise by talking about irrelevant issues. Demagogues rise by talking about issues that matter to people, and that more conventional leaders appear unwilling or unable to address: unemployment in the 1930s, crime in the 1960s, mass immigration now. Voters get to decide what the country's problems are. Political elites have to devise solutions to those problems. If difficult issues go unaddressed by responsible leaders, they will be exploited by irresponsible ones.

Have a good week! Go Irish!
